Notice is hereby given that George W. Fugate, miles from Mamzano. His barns were filled with corn and outside were stacked large quantities of kaffir corn and cane. He also had two carloads of sugar beets, fully matured, without irrigation. From actual analysis one of the samples went eighteen per cent saccharine and eighty-seven per cent pure. Sugar beets raised in California do not average much over thirteen per cent. It would seem that the upper Manzano country is the natural habitat of the sugar beet; in fact it takes a mountain valley to produce the best variety. Those raised on the La Cuevo ranch a few years ago went as high as 22 per cent saccharine and 90 per cent pure. La Cuevo is near Watrous in the Mora valley with altitude and conditions about the same as in the Estancia valley.—Albuquerque Journal
